STATEMENT

As I have become more involved in assisting parties to mediated resolutions of their disputes over the past 21 years, I have developed an affinity for the process. Often, disputes have underlying issues beyond the surface issues presented. I am able to understand those issues and once they are understood, assist parties to a resolution that is most often crafted by the parties themselves. The end result for the parties is less expense, less emotional fallout, and the ability to put disputes aside and move forward with their lives.
