PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Edward M. Lai specializes in representing building contractors and small business owners in commercial disputes, employment advice and litigation, contract negotiation, construction matters and tort/personal injury litigation. He has achieved excellent results at both jury and court bench trials, and hearings and proceedings in Federal, State and Appellate Courts. He has expertise in the fields of construction law, construction defect litigation, breach of contract, Americans With Disabilities (ADA) litigation, first party and third-party insurance coverage, business entity formation, professional malpractice litigation, and landlord/tenant disputes and litigation. As a Mediator, Mr. Lai has successfully mediated business/partnership disputes, wage & hour/employment disputes, landlord-tenant/unlawful detainer matters, as well as litigated and non-litigated personal injury matters. Many of his mediations involved highly emotional disputes and multi-cultural issues.

STATEMENT

I take great pride and personal satisfaction in my work as a Mediator to help parties resolve their disputes. My greatest successes come from allowing all parties to be heard, to clarify the undisputed facts, and to help understand the positions of the other party. Then, I focus the energies of the parties to help them fashion their own compromise solutions, while at the same time, diffusing their emotions and personal angers which so often, may have worked to stop their efforts to reach a resolution previously. I continually strive to cultivate and develop within me the fundamental skills necessary to be an effective mediator, including: (1) good listening and communication skills, (2) patience, (3) the ability to be understanding and empathetic to the situation of others, (4) identify important legal and factual issues and (5) the desire to work tirelessly and tenaciously. I work hard to help the parties resolve their differences amicably, effectively and efficiently, with a minimum of the emotional and economic burdens that are so commonly found in litigation.
